

Innovation Breakfast Series

Technology trends radically impacting people & talent

Be at the forefront of how changes in technology will impact you, your role & your organisation

Technology innovations are strategically changing the way we work and radically affecting the role of HR. Almost every part of management, capability building, recruiting and communication has been drastically changed by technology and will continue to do so.

It is important to stay vigilant and abreast of current trends and how technology is being utilised now and can be used in the future. This workshop will help you prepare for the impact on your workplace and help position you to take advantage of these trends and technological opportunities.

As part of our innovation breakfast workshop series our speakers will share with you high level trends, practical examples, case studies and ideas designed to challenge and provoke your thinking.
